

Coal Miners Ignore Back to Work Order

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Most of the striking miners in the soft coal fields stayed away from their jobs today despite a union back-to-work order.

But there was one tiny crack in the work stoppage. Some 190 miners went back to the Thunderbird Collieries near Shelby, Ind.

And in Ohio a continued shut-down of the mines was blamed chiefly on delay in receipt of the back-to-work order issued by officials of the United Mine Workers Union.

Elsewhere, a number of locals called meetings to discuss the walkout.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — About 53,000 striking soft coal miners in nine states were under union orders today to return to the pits.

But, it remained a question how soon they would end the walkout that ballooned into the biggest strike in the soft coal fields in 15 years.

In the past, some striking miners have taken their time obeying union back-to-work orders.

Two locals of the United Mine Workers in Pennsylvania voted Monday night to continue the strike. One of them reportedly voted unanimously to stay out until a new contract is signed.

A number of locals are expected to vote today, and one source said that even if they vote to return, pickets could prevent them from going back to work.

The strike started early Monday over the failure of the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to each agree on a new contract in Washington.

Telegrams signed by Union President W. A. (Tony) Boyle and other union officers went out Monday to all union districts ordering the strikers back to work.

LBJ Plans a Longer Stay on Ranch

By FRANK CORMIER
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson apparently intends to enjoy more springtime sunshine at his LBJ Ranch while other members of the family resume their regular schedules.

Mrs. Johnson planned to return to Washington today for some long-scheduled activities Wednesday. Daughter Luci, 18, was returning to the capital, too, to resume her studies at Georgetown University School of Nursing. Luci's fiancé, Patrick J. Nugent, was going back there to a job.

The President has given no hint of how long he might extend his Easter holiday visit to the ranch, some 65 miles north of San Antonio.

White House press headquarters here said Johnson spent much of Monday catching up with paperwork.

The President announced he had accepted recommendations from a task force, headed by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, on programs to keep young people busy and out of trouble this summer.

Most of these programs were developed last summer but Johnson said he wants them expanded.

Draft Faubus Letters, Says Mr. Bennett

Early urged another "Youth Opportunity Campaign" to promote summer hiring of young trainees by private employers and government.

Johnson also announced he will nominate Stanley H. Rutenburg, former AFL-CIO research director, to be assistant secretary of labor for manpower. Rutenburg, 49, now is manpower administrator for the Labor Department.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett said today he has received numerous letters in response to his "draft Faubus" call and that all are urging Gov. Orval Faubus to run for a seventh term.

Bennett said he believes there is a distinct possibility that Faubus will change his mind about retirement and run even though Faubus apparently has moved in the last few days to convince everyone that he will not be a candidate.

"He hasn't slammed the door," Bennett said.

Bennett refused to discuss his own political plans. He reportedly has considered running for governor but sources close to him say now that he plans to seek re-election as attorney general.

His response when Republican Jerry K. Thomasson of Arkadelphia filed for the office last week was, "Welcome aboard."

Bennett is completing his fourth two-year term in the attorney general's office. He served from 1957-1960 and was re-elected in 1962 after an unsuccessful race for governor in 1960.

Bennett did not say how many letters he received in support of a seventh term bid by Faubus.

Treatment of Cancer by Vaccination

DETROIT (AP) — Wayne State University medical researchers say they may have discovered a way to treat cancer by vaccination.

Results they claim for a four-year program so far include: — Two cancer patients, earlier given up as hopeless cases, completely freed of their tumors.

— Eight others once considered beyond help still alive, their cancers either halted or growing more slowly.

— Two patients with advanced tumors, their lives believed prolonged by the treatment.

Others among the 20 patients treated showed no improvement, said Dr. Paul L. Wolf, Wayne State professor of pathology and director of experimental pathology at the Detroit Institute of Cancer Research.

Failure in these cases, Dr. Wolf said, probably came because the disease was too far advanced and the patient's body no longer capable of producing cancer-fighting antibodies.

The Wayne group's vaccine, he explained, aids the victim's body in producing these antibodies.

Many cancer patients are lost, Dr. Wolf said, because their bodies don't fight the disease. The body recognizes the malignant cells as part of it, and doesn't react by producing the chemicals needed to kill them.

The Wayne State group combines cancerous cells taken from the patient with chemicals obtained from the cells of rabbits. Then the combination is injected into the patient.

His body recognizes the matter as foreign and produces antibodies to fight it. In the process, Dr. Wolf said, the antibodies may kill or retard the tumor.

The Summer Camp Has Changed

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The age of specialization has reached summer camps.

Once upon a summertime, children were packed off to camp for two weeks to live in tents, go swimming, learn nature lore and maybe cook corn on the cob in a pit.

Now they are off for two months, living in lush cabins with fireplaces and bathrooms, water skiing and scuba diving, and learning acting, auto mechanics or chamber music.

"There is an increasing trend toward specialization," said Betty Lowenstein, executive director, New York section, American Camping Association, Inc.

She estimates 5 1/2 million youngsters, aged 6 to 16, will go to the nation's 10,000 camps this summer. That is 1 1/2 million more youngsters and 500 more camps than in 1950 — and big business for camp operators.

Costs shoot up from nothing for the underprivileged, expenses of which may be picked up by charity groups, to $1,000 for the affluent private camps.

There are special camps for the mentally retarded, the emotionally disturbed and those with asthma.

There even are camps for parents.

The Audubon National Science Field Workshop, Greenwich, Conn., has a one-week $70 session for adults on how to keep a child in touch with the earth and his environment.

In recent years, there has been an upsurge in sports camps.

A Cape Cod camp, advertising basketball and tennis under Sam Jones, the Boston Celtics star, already is filled up this year and accepting inquiries for 1967.

Len Casanova, University of Oregon football coach, for the sixth year is running a sports camp for boys 9-14, on the Eugene, Ore., campus.

The boys live in dormitories and have access to all of the university athletic facilities for track, swimming, football, basketball, baseball, wrestling and gymnastics, under the instruction of university coaches.

Even in this age, there still is a bit of the wilds left in some of the camps.

Voice Print May Replace Fingerprint

By RONALD I. DEUTSCH
NEW YORK (AP) — A revolutionary device called the voiceprint that its inventor says may some day rival the fingerprint as a method of criminal identification has been accepted as evidence in a perjury case.

The inventor, Lawrence G. Kersta, 58, a physicist, appears today in Westchester County Court to demonstrate how the voiceprint works.

Judge Robert Dempsey ruled Monday that the new form of identification could be used by the state in the case of a suspended policeman from New Rochelle charged with perjury.

It would be the first time that the device would be introduced as evidence in court although some police departments are known to be experimenting with it.

Kersta, a former employee of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., has developed an electronic method of converting the voice into weird-looking picture displays known as spectrographs. These measure the physical characteristics of a voice, each of which is unique, Kersta says.

"You might call it a fingerprint of a voice," the physicist said in an interview. "Right now voice prints are where fingerprints were 60 years ago, but they could easily become as valuable to police as fingerprints."

Kersta's words were echoed by Samuel Dash, a law expert from Washington, D.C.

"What we've got now is a whole new issue of law," Dash said. "Maybe we'll keep files of voiceprints — and just think of their value in kidnapping or extortion cases."

Kersta believes the voiceprint represents a milestone in criminology that could easily help police track down suspects in 1970 by involving the use of telephones. He says he has supervised the production of 50,000 voiceprints with 97 per cent accuracy.

LBJ Using Everything on Businessmen

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson is using his persuasiveness in an attempt to swing businessmen into line behind his war on inflation.

The President has used pressure, he has called businessmen on the phone and he has entertained them at a White House dinner.

All of these means have been employed to get his message across: Hold the line against price and wage increases beyond the guidelines his Administration has set up.

The big question: How successful is he going to be with the economy booming and the Viet Nam war increasing pressure?

The administration and its economists feel that the economy with its twin pressures is in danger of overheating and generating inflation.

One of the first developments that brought presidential pressure was the increase in aluminum and copper prices. Johnson immediately announced that a substantial amount of these metals would be released from the national stockpile to hold prices steady.

The result was that both industries rolled back their increases.

In each case the administration made it plain that it considered price increase not only unwarranted but unpatriotic while the Viet Nam war was being pressed.

Then the tobacco industry announced a wholesale price increase for cigarettes that would have been reflected in a boost of about a cent a package at retail.

Johnson let it be known that he did not consider this hike in the interest of the consumers. The industry halved its price increase and this was acceptable.

The President next turned his attention to curtailing corporate expenditures for plant expansion squabbles in my daily mail. I and modernization as a means of heading off inflation.

He turned to his telephone technique and called 25 to 30 businessmen to ask them to cut back on these expenditures.

Then he called 150 of the nation's top businessmen to the White House for a dinner at been done; my two daughters which he again urged a slow down on capital spending.

He was reported to have received considerable support. Half of them were married the same summer, but not the same day, and they wore the same wedding dress, a lovely creation. Well, my husband had a friend whose daughter was being married several months later. Our daughter

Dear Helen: I'm glad to see a man who is honest about the reason behind big weddings (the bridegroom who said, "Face it — the loot is what counts.") This wedding jazz is like a chain reaction. One girl has a big affair (Wedding, I mean), and everybody kicks in with gifts. The next tries to outdo her. More money drained from friends for gifts. Well by this time the gals who donated figure the only way to get their money back is by throwing the church open to all their friends, who contribute nicely to setting up the couple's little nest. And so it goes.

What they don't realize (or maybe they do, but it's the bride's parents' money, so they don't care) is that the cost of a big wedding is greater, usually, than the net worth of the gifts. It's like declaring business loss on your income (tax so you'll get a refund but you're still in the red).

When I get married I'll stand on this: our wedding will cost no more than $15.00: $10.00 for the minister, and $5.00 for the corsage, and we may spend that corsage money on our first dinner — Alone! Why expend the energy you need for your honeymoon on a big whoop-ledo that leaves you so drained, physically and financially you don't even WANT a honeymoon? — Student

Dear Student: The majority of men and a growing number of girls will rink to that. (Soda, silly, this is a teen column!)

And here's my five-cents worth: Big wedding are for people who: 1. Can afford them. 2. Think they can't possibly function without them; and 3. Have totally compatible relatives and friends who won't get their feelings hurt and end up feudin'.

According to my observations have been reflected in a boost of item rules out about 60 percent. The second eliminates near 100 percent of the bridegrooms; and the third — Everybody!

In case I didn't make myself clear: I'm on your side all the way. Student, but it's only a personal opinion brought on from arbitrating too many wedding squabbles in my daily mail. I may wish my typewriter ribbon had come with invisible ink 10 or 15 years from now when our technique and called 25 to 30 daughters get orange blossoms businessmen to ask them to cut back on these expenditures.

to Sell A Wedding Gown
Dear Helen: Please tell the "Somewhat Broke" that it has White House for a dinner at been done; my two daughters which he again urged a slow down on capital spending.

He was reported to have received considerable support. Half of them were married the same summer, but not the same day, and they wore the same wedding dress, a lovely creation. Well, my husband had a friend whose daughter was being married several months later. Our daughter

Dear Helen: This is in reference to the mother of the 14-year-old smoker who said she had tried everything to get her daughter to quit. I am also a smoker, age 14, a girl. I started smoking to be one of the crowd and I wish I hadn't! I have had my allowance cut off, lectures, everything, but these didn't make me stop. I still smoke a pack a week no more, and I have to sneak them. The mount hasn't multiplied as you said it probably would.

I'm not trying to say smoking is okay for a 14-year-old, but I wish adults would realize it's just as hard for a teenager to quit as it is for them. Would THEY quit because they were threatened? We're hooked too!

Dear Smoker: If you smoke, no more than three cigarettes a day, you aren't hooked, honey. You could stop tomorrow and miss nothing but the phony grown up feeling you get when you light up and drag. So don't hand me the old malarkey about, "I wish I'd never started but," sly, sly, "I just can't kick the habit." That's bragging — And You Know It!

Dear Helen: I'm glad to see a man who is honest about the reason behind big weddings (the bridegroom who said, "Face it — the loot is what counts.") This wedding jazz is like a chain reaction. One girl has a big affair (Wedding, I mean), and everybody kicks in with gifts. The next tries to outdo her. More money drained from friends for gifts. How To Have A Lovely Wedding — On $13.00

Dear Helen: I'm glad to see a man who is honest about the reason behind big weddings (the bridegroom who said, "Face it — the loot is what counts.") This wedding jazz is like a chain reaction. One girl has a big affair (Wedding, I mean), and everybody kicks in with gifts. The next tries to outdo her. More money drained from friends for gifts. Well by this time the gals who donated figure the only way to get their money back is by throwing the church open to all their friends, who contribute nicely to setting up the couple's little nest. And so it goes.

What they don't realize (or maybe they do, but it's the bride's parents' money, so they don't care) is that the cost of a big wedding is greater, usually, than the net worth of the gifts. It's like declaring business loss on your income (tax so you'll get a refund but you're still in the red).

When I get married I'll stand on this: our wedding will cost no more than $15.00: $10.00 for the minister, and $5.00 for the corsage, and we may spend that corsage money on our first dinner — Alone! Why expend the energy you need for your honeymoon on a big whoop-ledo that leaves you so drained, physically and financially you don't even WANT a honeymoon? — Student

Dear Student: The majority of men and a growing number of girls will rink to that. (Soda, silly, this is a teen column!)

And here's my five-cents worth: Big wedding are for people who: 1. Can afford them. 2. Think they can't possibly function without them; and 3. Have totally compatible relatives and friends who won't get their feelings hurt and end up feudin'.

According to my observations have been reflected in a boost of item rules out about 60 percent. The second eliminates near 100 percent of the bridegrooms; and the third — Everybody!

In case I didn't make myself clear: I'm on your side all the way. Student, but it's only a personal opinion brought on from arbitrating too many wedding squabbles in my daily mail. I may wish my typewriter ribbon had come with invisible ink 10 or 15 years from now when our technique and called 25 to 30 daughters get orange blossoms businessmen to ask them to cut back on these expenditures.

Dear Helen: This is in reference to the mother of the 14-year-old smoker who said she had tried everything to get her daughter to quit. I am also a smoker, age 14, a girl. I started smoking to be one of the crowd and I wish I hadn't! I have had my allowance cut off, lectures, everything, but these didn't make me stop. I still smoke a pack a week no more, and I have to sneak them. The mount hasn't multiplied as you said it probably would.

I'm not trying to say smoking is okay for a 14-year-old, but I wish adults would realize it's just as hard for a teenager to quit as it is for them. Would THEY quit because they were threatened? We're hooked too!

Dear Smoker: If you smoke, no more than three cigarettes a day, you aren't hooked, honey. You could stop tomorrow and miss nothing but the phony grown up feeling you get when you light up and drag. So don't hand me the old malarkey about, "I wish I'd never started but," sly, sly, "I just can't kick the habit." That's bragging — And You Know It!

Coach Feels 76ers Still Have Chance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Dolph Schayes still feels his Philadelphia 76ers will "come out roaring" as they try to fight off elimination in the National Basketball Association Eastern playoff tonight against the Boston Celtics.

"Time is running out," Schayes said Monday as he watched the 76ers in an hour-long practice. "But the fact that we're one defeat away doesn't mean anything."

"This is the type of club that doesn't get down because of a heart-breaking loss."

Philadelphia, trailing Boston 3-1 in the best-of-seven series, must win its next three games to advance to the final round.

A Boston victory will close out the Eastern series.

There's probably a good reason for Schayes' outlook for this game. Boston hasn't won on the Convention Hall floor since December, 1964, including five games this season.

In the Western Division final playoff, St. Louis, trailing Los Angeles 3-2 in a best-of-seven series, faces the Lakers Wednesday night on the Hawks' court.

The Hawks stayed alive by defeating the Lakers 12-100 Sunday night in Los Angeles. Now the determined Hawks must take the next two to keep going.

16 Qualify in River Oaks Meet

HOUSTON (AP) — Monday's 16 qualifiers in the 32nd annual River Oaks Invitational Tennis Tournament faced the exempt players today as the tournament's opening round got under way.

The No. 1 seed, Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., was paired with Fred Kester, an Irving, Tex., player who downed Tommy West of San Antonio, Tex., 2-6, 6-3, 6-2 in the first qualifying round.

Kester dropped Luther Bullock of Trinity University 6-2, 6-2 in the second round.

College stars dominated Monday's rounds, with the University of Corpus Christi boasting three qualifiers. Lamar Tech, Trinity and Pan American each qualified two players, followed by Rice and St. Edward's with one apiece.

Tony Roche of Australia, the No. 2 seed in the tournament, was paired with Mike Estep in today's play. The Dallas player qualified by defeating Al Driscoll of Beaumont, Tex., 3-6, 6-3, 11-9 and ousting Bill Graves of Houston 6-6, 6-0.

Another Australian, third-seeded John Newcombe, met Danny Ohyant of Trinity, who beat Scott McWilliams of the University of Houston 6-1, 1-6, 6-3 and Joe Casali of Lamar Tech 6-0, 6-1.

Cliff Richey of Dallas, the fourth seed, was paired with Chris Bovett of Pan American, who defeated David Young of Austin, Tex., 6-2, 6-0 Monday before downing Hugh Sweeney of Houston 6-4, 6-4.

Barry Named NBA Rookie of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — San Francisco's Rick Barry, Rookie of the Year in the National Basketball Association, has moved into exclusive company.

He's been chosen along with Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia, Jerry Lucas and Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati and Jerry West of Los Angeles on the NBA All Star team.

The voting, conducted among sports writers and broadcasters in the nine league cities, produced a unanimous choice. Robertson came closest, missing on only one of the 86 ballots cast.

Named to the second team were Bill Russell, John Havlicek and Sam Jones, all of Boston, and Philadelphia's Hal Greer and Baltimore's Gus Johnson.

Nicklaus Wins 2nd Masters Tournament

By KEN ALTYA

Associated Press Sports Writer AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — What's next for Jack Nicklaus? The powerful Columbus, Ohio, blond slugger, given a reprieve in the form of a playoff after his own admission blowing the Masters Golf Tournament, didn't miss Monday.

His victory in the 18-hole playoff with Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer added another in his list of historic Augusta accomplishments.

He became the first man to win the Masters two years in a row. He has won it three times in four years, finishing in a second-place tie the year he didn't win.

Last year he set the tournament record of 271-17 under par—and included a tournament record-equaling 64 enroute.

When he won his first Masters three years ago at 23 he became the youngest winner of the classic.

The $20,000 check he earned by shooting a playoff 70 against 72 for Jacobs and 78 for Brewer brought his official money earnings since turning professional to over $449,000.

At 26 he stands as the recognized No. 1 player in golf. And this at an age some 10 years before many players reach their peak.

Asked how long he'd continue to play tournament golf, he replied, "As long as I continue to enjoy it and have a desire to win. The two go hand-in-hand. The one hasn't a thing in the world to do with it."

He gave a hint of his next ambition by saying he planned to compete in the British Open—with a difference. This year he'll go there about 10 days early to practice for the classic. "I like to practice, anyway," he explained.

No Decision Yet on Move of the Braves

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller labored into the early hours today, trying to complete his decision in Wisconsin's antitrust suit against baseball with the Braves' Atlanta debut only hours away.

The white-haired judge, who is 64, would not pinpoint a time for the announcement of the verdict.

"I'm sure it will be today," Roller said, "but as for what time I'm not making any predictions."

The Braves, who left Milwaukee after 13 seasons here, are scheduled to open a 18:05 p.m., EST, in Atlanta against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Wisconsin has asked the judge to order the Braves to return here this season if the National League failed to agree to an expansion team for Milwaukee by today. State attorneys have conceded any order by Roller's court could not be enforced unless it came before the Braves' first game in Atlanta.

Early today the judge was still working to complete the draft of his lengthy, complex ruling. A court aide said, "We've got more than 100 pages now."

Judge Roller planned to finish the decision before dawn if possible, but it might be hours later before editing was completed and the decision could be copied and bound for distribution to attorneys and the press.

T. Western Wants to Keep Coach

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Western Athletic Director George McCarty said time was the biggest factor regarding his football coach, Bobby Dobbs, and the West Point position.

"I'm going on the assumption that the longer this hangs the better our chances are," said McCarty. "He hasn't made up his mind. I don't know what he'll do."

Dobbs met last weekend with Army's Athletic Director Ray Murphy and talked with him on the telephone Monday about the West Point coaching post, vacated last week when Paul Dietzel resigned and became the South Carolina football coach.

"We're negotiating," said Dobbs about the telephone call. A spokesman at West Point, N.Y., said Monday night, "Ray Murphy will be in his office Tuesday and may make a decision at that time."

Time also seemed to be an important factor at West Point because spring training starts Saturday.

Red Rubs 76ers Wrong Way

By SANDY PADWE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. PHILADELPHIA—(NEA)—Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics was making an honest attempt at being humble.

After nine years without practice, though, it was difficult.

The Philadelphia 76ers had just won the Eastern Division championship in the National Basketball Association, ending the Celtics' nine-year reign.

So there was Auerbach saying the 76ers were to be congratulated "because they didn't back into the title."

It wasn't, however, a total concession because nothing passes Red Auerbach without some dissent.

"Philadelphia," he said, "has been real lucky. They didn't have a real serious injury all season."

'We had our injuries . . . But these guys played.'

The statement wasn't appreciated by Al Domenico.

He is the 76ers' trainer, traveling secretary, 10th man in practice scrimmages. He also is a former professional baseball player who fully understands the problems involved in keeping an NBA team healthy for a whole season.

So just as it became a matter of pride for the 76ers to beat the Celtics this season, it became a matter of pride for Domenico to get his players through the season in the best shape possible.

"Auerbach is wrong," Domenico said. "We had our injuries, plenty of them. But these guys played. They deserve the credit. At one time or another they could have sat out, but nobody missed a game all year for an injury. Wilt Chamberlain, of course, missed the one game in Boston because he was sick."

"When you live the way we do in this league—out of a suitcase—and travel from varying climates every day, you have to watch the players very closely."

"I had to find a way to keep their energy up. I put them on vitamins. We had different ones, but all with the same purpose."

"Wilt even said the dextrose-B-1 vitamins seem to have cured his stomach troubles more than any medication he took in the past few years. I think he was getting the pains because his energy was gone. After a game he would sit there in terrible pain. It hasn't been that way for the past two months."

"But as far as the injuries, everyone had them. Wilt had a painful bone bruise on his right hand for three weeks, and his knees have given him trouble all year. I have a massage them before the game and sometimes even during the game."

"Billy Cunningham had a bad back for weeks, and he couldn't even be taped because he has sensitive skin. We had to devise a special back support for him."

"Hal Greer had a severe groin muscle pull, but again, we devised a special pad that kept it from expanding."

"It seems everyone had a thumb or finger dislocation and they can be very painful. Chet Walker had a couple."

"Luke Jackson, as you probably know, played all year with a cracked tibia bone in his right leg. Any time he was kicked under the boards, it really hurt."

"We had our share, you see. It was just a matter of these guys wanting something very badly. They got it, too."

New Member Told Not to Tamper

MONTREAL (AP) — Owner of the National Hockey League's new franchises have been warned not to tamper with personnel from the six existing teams, league President Clarence Campbell said Thursday.

Campbell said three reports of tampering had reached his office. "The overtures were made to non playing personnel," he pointed out.

Campbell did not identify the person or the new club responsible, but he said that all three incidents were the work of "an executive employee of one new franchise holder."

Franchises for the league's new six-team division have been awarded recently to Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

It's no secret. We make more cigars of one brand than anyone and spend only a fraction for advertising. Still, sometimes we wish we could spend more advertising this fine cigar value. But, we'd have to raise our price or cut our quality. Then, we might not sell as many. What do you think?

Adventure

Adventure, like beauty, can be a very personal thing—it's where you find it and how you see it. So it is for Patsy Daldo, 10, of Pottsville, Pa., in a walk around the grounds of her school. And for Patsy, there can be very special adventure in the sight of a leaf, the shimmer of sunlight through trees, a reflection in quiet water. She is a student at the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf in Philadelphia and her assignment was to report back on her explorations to her language class, where she is being taught to speak clearly despite deafness, and to read lips.

There are pebbles to be searched for and shifting patterns to be seen by stirring cool stream waters.

IN CONTROL—Indonesian army leaders led by Defense Minister Gen. Suharto strengthened their grip on the country with inauguration of a streamlined 30-member cabinet. In setting up the new government the military forced President Sukarno to drop Communist-inclined ministers.

A tree is not only for seeing and touching, but for swinging.

WARMING UP FOR THE MOON—A Lunar Orbiter spacecraft is put through its electronic paces at the NASA Goldstone, Calif., Tracking Station. Photographs are being transmitted as electronic signals from several miles away to the echo antenna, where they are converted into light and recorded on film. Later this year, a flight version of the spacecraft is scheduled to orbit the moon, taking high-resolution photographs of the surface in a search for suitable landing sites for future Apollo astronauts.

THE SHAPE TO COME—Here is the air transport of the future, according to the Lockheed-California Co. which has this proposed supersonic plane, the L-2000-7, on the drawing boards. Sheathed in titanium, it is designed to carry up to 226 passengers and cruise at 1,800 m.p.h. at altitudes of 60,000 to 70,000 feet.

THE BORN LOSER

By ART SANSOM

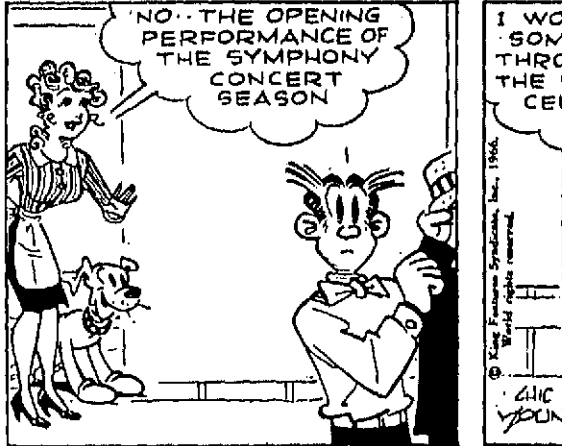

The fiery glow that airline passengers often see around the edges of the propellers and along the tips of the wings is called St. Elmo's fire, named after the patron saint of Mediterranean sailors. The name is an Italian corruption of St. Erasmus. The glow is what accompanies discharges of atmospheric electricity along the extremities of pointed objects, including church steeples and the masts of ships during stormy weather.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Preference Cued On First Lead

By JACOB & SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The suit preference signal can even be used on the opening lead.

West's first impulse is to go to seven hearts and accept a seven or nine-hundred-point penalty against a possible vulnerable slam. Then he sees a chance to beat the slam if his partner can win the first trick with the ace of hearts and will return a club. How can he ask for a club return? The suit preference signal.

West leads the deuce of hearts. East wins with the ace and asks himself, "Why did my partner lead the deuce of hearts? It couldn't be fourth best." Then he realizes that the lead was to ask for the return of the lower side suit. East leads back a club. West ruffs and another slam has bit the dust.

Suppose West happens to be void of diamonds instead of clubs. How can he lead so as to get a diamond return? It is not as easy. His highest diamond is the king and if he leads the king his partner will think that he has merely made a normal lead of king from queen.

In expert circles he could lead the queen. East would win with the ace and do a little thinking after noting that South followed with the five spot. He would wonder where the king was and eventually come to the conclusion that his partner would have it. No one, even an expert, is likely to open three hearts with a six-card suit to the queen-jack. Then East would recognize that a suit preference signal for diamonds had been given him.

"A Light In The Philippines" was the theme of the supper meeting of the Junior American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 12, last week in the home of Mrs. Talbot Feild, Jr. and Cathy.

The potluck supper had rice and meat for the main dish to carry out theme, and the cloth used on the table was of brown fiber centered with a map of the Philippines outlined in red and blue, a gift of the Rev. and Mrs. Joe Jones.

Seven members were present and participated in the activities of the evening. Prizes for the best dressed person depicting the Philippine theme went to Mary Nell Williams and Martha Bader, who attended the supper as tourists.

A collection was taken for the Philippine Project, and plans were made to attend the Junior Conference in Little Rock on Saturday, April 30.

Melina's Gay Menage

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS (NEA)—Melina Mercouri lives a happy, hectic life when she's here — the kind of life you'd expect from a happy, hectic Greek.

She lives in the only luxury hotel in Paris with kitchen facilities. That's because she likes to eat in. She has a Greek cook and likes Greek food.

The suite is always buzzing. There was the cook and there was Dimmy and there was Irena and a man coming in with a radio and a French poodle and telephone calls and Jules Dassin was expected any minute.

"I am so tired," she said. "I've been playing gin all day with Dimmy and Irena."

Dimmy is a cousin who designs her clothes. Irena is her best friend. Melina teased Irena about how much money she had lost playing gin and Irena bridled and they had a long argument, part in English, part French, part Greek, full of gestures and loud noises. In the middle, Dimmy bowed and left and the poodle barked him out.

It was a little difficult — but fun — to try and discuss serious things in this boisterous atmosphere.

WE TALKED ABOUT MARLON BRANDO. "He's the most marvelous thing," Melina said. "We want to do a picture together, but it must not be a commercial picture. It must be strange — moderne — I don't know. Strange."

The waiter came up from the bar with some drinks. Irena and Melina had a long argument about how you pronounce "ginger ale" in Greek. The decision was that it was "ginger aily."

"Ah, movies," Melina said, lighting up a powerful Greek cigarette. "It's an ugly business. Egocentric. Without pity. Intelligent people shouldn't be in it."

But she is in it and she is obviously intelligent. She has a mind of her own and uses it independently.

"I want to work in Hollywood one day," she said. "If I can find a good script. It has become a kind of snobbishness for Europeans to say they don't want to work in Hollywood. Utter nonsense."

But the Oscar race leaves her cold. She curled her legs under her on the couch and made an expressive face.

"The Oscar? Poof. What is it, this Oscar? If Garbo and Chaplin have never won it, what is it?"

SHE WAS HAPPY about the good reviews she had read for her latest picture, "A Man Could Get Killed," with James Garner. And then she talked about how good it is that movies have become international.

"Art has no frontiers," she said. "Language should mean nothing. It is easier for me to communicate with a Japanese director, even if we cannot understand each other's language, than it is to speak to a Greek butcher. We know what we mean, without words."

We talked about the many European girls who have become international stars — more than American girls, by far.

"You know why this is so?" she said. "Because it used to be that Hollywood studios developed their girls. They do not do this any more. But European directors do. A European director takes a young girl he likes and develops her."

"He puts her in one picture after another. And so she develops and has much exposure. American girls do not have this arrangement."

When I left, there was still much talking and laughing. The happy sounds followed me down the hall.

Potash

In early days, the operation of making potash from wood ashes was carried out in iron pots; hence the name potash from "pot" and "ashes."

Used Outboard Can Be Good Buy

If you're looking for a good buy on an outboard, check the used motor market.

Booming new motor sales mean marine dealers have a wide selection of models to choose from and the careful shopper can enjoy years of trouble-free boating for a relatively small investment.

The most important consideration is who manufactured the motor and who is attempting to sell it, reports the service department at Evinrude Motors. Make sure replacement parts are available now and will be in years ahead.

It's good advice to buy only from an established marine dealer. Although many private owners are operating in good faith, too many buyers have been stuck with "hot" motors, and we're not talking about speed.

Operate the engine, either in a test tank or in an actual demonstration run. Easy starting and a smooth idle usually indicate that the powerhead is okay. If possible, remove the intake cover and examine the piston rings and piston cylinders for signs of excessive wear.

If the powerhead checks out, take a look at the lower unit. A noticeable dent or gash should serve as a warning that the unit struck an underwater object. Serious damage could have resulted to the housing and gears. Remove the drain plug and check for water in the lubricant. Its presence means the outer housing is cracked or broken.

An actual demonstration run will give you further evidence to buy or not to buy. Watch for faulty acceleration or excessive vibration. Use a tachometer to make sure the engine is turning at least its rated revolutions per minute. Changing propellers could correct either of these problems, so don't condemn too early.

Outboard Canoeing

A canoe trip doesn't have to be an endurance test, reports the Evinrude News Service. Side brackets, priced at about $15.00, are available for mounting small outboard motors. Square stern canoes also allow easy outboard installation.

Fish's Searchlight

The firefly fish carries its own searchlight. Under each eye, it has a large oval spot emitting a bright light. The fish can cut off the flow of light by means of a fold of tissue that works like an eyelid. In reality, the glow is produced by a colony of bacteria dwelling under the fish's eye.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Surgery Now Corrects Most Heart Defects

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have coronary insufficiency with attacks of angina pectoris. I take nitroglycerin and paratrate for the pain. Would it be better to switch to digitalis and stop the paratrate?

A—Nitroglycerin and pentaerythritol tetranitrate (Peritrate) are both given to dilate the coronary arteries. Digitalis is given to strengthen the heart beat, chiefly in persons with a severely leaking heart valve. You should follow your doctor's instructions because digitalis is of no value in the treatment of coronary heart disease.

Q—I have an abnormality of the left ventricle. Is this some kind of heart disease? What would cause it? Can it be cured by surgery or relieved by drugs?

A—The heart has four chambers (two auricles and two ventricles). The left ventricle is by far the largest and has the thickest wall. From this chamber blood is pumped to every part of your body except your lungs. Defects may be present from birth or may be the result of an infection such as rheumatic fever. With modern surgical methods most of these defects can now be corrected. Drugs may be used to improve heart function but will not cure the condition.

Q—How serious is endocarditis? How is it caused?

A—Endocarditis is caused by a bacterial invasion of the inner lining of the heart.

This may be caused by various germs but most commonly by streptococci. Before the advent of antibiotics it was always fatal. Even with antibiotics only about 70 per cent of the victims can be saved.

Q—What is hypertensive cardiovascular disease? Is it very serious? What is the best treatment for it?

A—This is heart disease secondary to a very high blood pressure. Such a blood pressure puts a severe burden on the heart. It is a gradual process but it will lead to death if not promptly and skillfully treated. The treatment consists primarily in controlling the blood pressure.

Q—I have emphysema. Last November I had the removal of the carotid body sometimes recommended for this condition. I am still short-winded. I've heard that vanillic diethylamide will give prompt relief. What do you think?

A—This drug, known as ethamivan, must be given by injection into the vein. The rate of injection must be very slow to prevent such side effects as coughing, sneezing, muscular twitching and generalized itching. The greatest disadvantage, however, is that the beneficial effect wears off in a short time. In spite of the advances made in the treatment of this troublesome disease there is still no real cure.

HER HONOR—Louise Tesmer will be brightening up court proceedings in a Milwaukee suburb as the judge. The 23-year-old University of Wisconsin law student was elected municipal justice at St. Francis, Wis.

Many Believe Pay Raises Doomed Gov.

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — With the filing deadline just two weeks and one day away, the governor's race has done very little shaping up since Gov. Orval Faubus announced three weeks ago that he would not be a candidate.

Many would-be Democratic candidates presumably were waiting to make sure that Faubus would not change his mind. Sources close to Faubus said Monday that they need fret no longer—that Faubus is definitely out.

These sources told The Associated Press that Faubus is telling his supporters to quit counting on his re-entering the contest.

This position coincides with the public position he has taken all along.

He was unable, however, to convince many of his friends who believed that he did not want to run but who thought, or hoped, that he would change his mind.

Faubus said he would get back in only if the Democrats fail to produce a candidate capable of challenging Republican Winthrop Rockefeller.

That situation, Faubus said Monday, is not likely to develop.

So you can close and lock the door," he said. But he added, in a typical Faubus gesture, "but that doesn't mean you should throw away the key."

More than 20 names have figured in Democratic gubernatorial speculation in the last two months.

Two men have filed, state Rep. Kenneth Sulcer of Osceola and former Justice Jim Johnson, who ran unsuccessfully against Faubus in 1956.

Two besides Faubus have said definitely that they would not run — insurance man Frank Whitbeck and W. R. (Wilt) Stephens. Both cited commitments to their businesses.

Dale Alford and Brooks Hays, both former U. S. Representatives, are reported on the verge of entering the race. Alford is putting together a campaign organization. Hays' friends are making a serious assessment of his support.

Winston Chandler and Jess P. Odum of Little Rock, State Sen. Olen Hendrix of Prescott, Marvin Melton of Jonesboro, Sam Boyce of Newport and Odell Dorsey of near Sheridan have been scouting for support.

The names of Bill Kennedy of Pine Bluff, Storm Whaley of Little Rock and Prosecutor Joe Woodward of Magnolia have been mentioned by friends who would like to see them run.

Dr. Ralph Phelps of Arkadelphia reportedly was interested in the race if Faubus ran but reportedly has been leaning away from it in recent weeks.

Foreman and Jim Cooch of Arkadelphia discussed their chances with Faubus but reportedly got very little encouragement at the grass roots level.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett flirted with the race but reportedly is ready to file for re-election.

400 Riot at Maryland State Prison

BREATHEDSVILLE, Md.

(AP) — About 400 prisoners at the Maryland Correctional Institution rioted for two hours today before state police and prison guards controlled them.

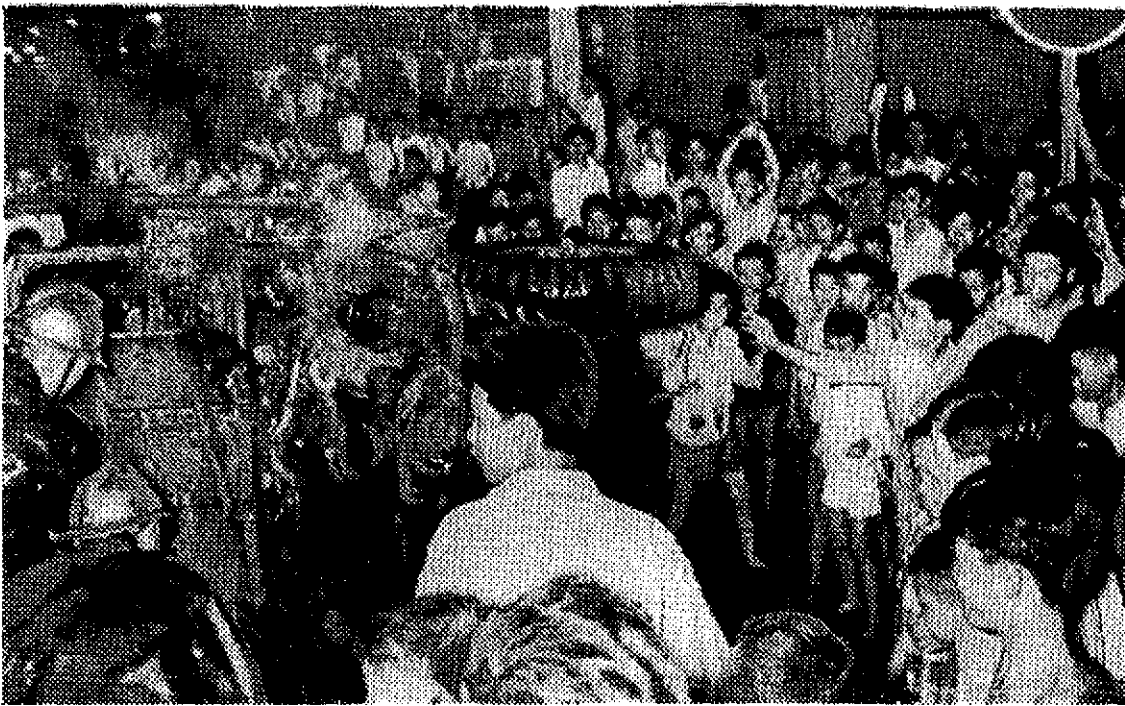

Two prisoners and one guard were injured in the melee, which broke out about 5:30 a.m. as the first breakfast shift prepared to eat in the dining hall.

None of the injuries was believed to be serious.

Preston L. Fitzberger, superintendent of the medium security prison for young offenders, said he had no idea what caused the trouble. He ordered breakfast resumed after about half of the 400 returned to their cells.

The institution, six miles from Hagerstown in western Maryland, has 1,495 inmates aged 15 to 25. The superintendent's office said it was built to hold a maximum of 800.

About 40 state troopers and several sheriff's deputies joined prison guards to halt the riot.

GOP Issues More Abuse Charges

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Republican Party charged today that it had found another example of what it calls flagrant abuse of state tax money to build roads for political friends of Gov. Orval Faubus.

In the party newspaper, The Arkansas Outlook, the GOP pointed to a bridge being built over Fource La Pave River in Perry County near property owned by Rep. Paul Van Dalsem.

Shortly after Van Dalsem cleared more than 300 acres of land near Aplin, the state Highway Department announced that it would take a nearby county road into the state highway system as part of Arkansas 155.

Then, when a bridge west of the highway caved in, the state Highway Commission let a contract for a $154,000 bridge.

But instead of being built at the old crossing, the bridge is across the river at the east boundary of Van Dalsem's land.

"Most of the new road runs by the Van Dalsem land, and there is not a single house along the last two-thirds of the road, which 'comes to a virtual dead end at the Ouachita National Forest,' near the south boundary of Van Dalsem's property.

The GOP called on Commission Chairman Wayne Hampton to explain the location of this road, and others the Arkansas Outlook has pointed to in previous editions.

Hampton has declined to comment on the accusations.

By THOMAS A. REEDY

An Army spokesman reported heavy casualties, indicating perhaps a third or more of the GIs were killed or wounded. A rifle company at full strength has 178 men.

Accused Hijacker Is Arrested

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An alleged airplane hijacker and two priests accused of hiding him were arrested Monday at a Havana monastery, the Cuban radio said.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said Angel Betancourt was seized in the Roman Catholic monastery of St. Francis while monks outside clamored for his immediate execution.

The clergymen arrested were identified as Luis Serafin Ajuria, superior of the monastery, and Miguel A. Loredo. The religious establishment is run by the Franciscan Order.

Betancourt has been hunted since March 27 when the pilot of an armed guard of a Cuban Airlines plane were shot dead in flight aboard a plane carrying 92 persons. The plane landed at Havana despite the hijacker's demand that it make for Miami.

A dozen persons, in addition to the two priests, were arrested on charges of helping Betancourt hijack the plane or elude police afterward.
